NOTES

Note 1 Ludovic Grant, a Scotchman, joined the Jacobite Rebellion of 1715 which sought to restore James II to the throne of England. He was captured at Preston and was transported with many others who had also been captured from Liverpool, England, to South Carolina aboard the "Susannah" in 1716. In a deposition given by him in 1751, Grant stated that he came to the Cherokee Nation as a trader 26 years before. He was a trader at Tellico in 1730. Starr states that he married a full blood Cherokee of the Long Hair Clan. In 1754 his home was located at Tommothy in the Cherokee Nation. (See Directory of Scots Banished to the American Plantations 1650-1775 by David Dobson, pub. by Genealogical Publishing Co., 1984; and Documents relating to Indian Affairs May 21, 1750-August 7, 1754, edited by William L. McDowell, Jr., pub. by South Carolina Archives Department, 1958.)

Note 2 From 1876 until 1881 a series of articles were written for the "Cherokee Advocate" by an unknown Cherokee using the pseudonym of "White Horse". A letter from him appeared in the May 26, 1880 issue from which the following is taken:

Leaving Line creek we enter Little Hills Valley, and call on Capt. Archibald Campbell, who is the son of an old Scotchman that came among the Cherokees before the Revolutionary War. With him we spend the night, and from him we learn all about the Cherokee War with the Osages. How the warriors of the lowertown received a message from their friends on the Arkansas, that the Osages had made war upon them, that they needed reinforcements, and urged their friends to come without delay: how a company did go, that he went along, as did also Rev. Turtle Fields, Rev. Jno. Huss, and Rev. Jno. F. Boot, how they joined their friends, and marched against the Osages, attacked them at their town near Clairamore mound, some 80 Cherokees with the deadly rifle, and several hundred Osages with bows and arrows. In this battle the Osages were badly used up, and retreated, and the Cherokees took many prisoners. In another battle, the leader of the Cherokees was badly wounded. His men put him in a canoe to take him down the river to Dardanelle, but he died at the mouth of a large creek, where he was buried, and as his name was Lee, they gave the creek the name of Lees creek. This Lee was a cousin of Judge Jno. Martin.

The father of Lee was said to be a young man from Virginia, who came down among the Cherokees to hunt, fish, and to partake in their games. He was a great favorite of the Old Chiefs and young men on account of his dashing ways. He married according to the old customs a daughter of an Englishman named Emory, and had two children. He disappeared as suddenly as he came.

The 1835 Cherokee Census lists three families in which the head of the household was named Lee. The family of Ned Lee lived on Coosa River, Georgia, and contained 2 males under 18, 1 male over 18, 4 females under 16, and 1 female over 16 for a total of 8 family members (1 halfbreed and 7 full-bloods). The family of Moses Lee lived on Chatowga River, Georgia, and contained 1 male over 18, 2 females under 16, and 1 female over 16 for a total of 4 family members (all quadroons). The family of Walter Lee lived on Raccoon Creek, Georgia, and contained 2 males under 18, 1 male over 18, 4 females under 16, and 1 male over 16 for a total of 8 family members (1 halfbreed, 6 quadroons, and 1 white connected by marriage). Interestingly, Walter Lee was enumerated next to John Fields, Sr. (1 1 3 5⁴) whose aunt married the Lee from Virginia. These Lee families are likely the descendants of Ludovic Grant through the Emory and Lee union.
